

the bill from the House of Representatives, entitled, An act to incorporate the Tombecbee Rail Road Company, and for other purposes, is read the first time.
 In motion of Mr. McNUTT, the rule was dispensed with, and said bill was read a second time by its title.
 McNUTT moved that said bill be referred to a select committee of three;
 his motion was lost, and Mr. Bole democrat, moved that it be referred to a select committee to which was referred the bill to incorporate the Tombecbee Rail Road Company, which motion prevailed. At page 356 Mr. McNutt from the select committee, reported the bill with amendments; on Mr McNutt's motion, the report was read and agreed to.
 At page 357, the vote on the final passage of the bill is recorded, and stands as follows:
 For Mr. President (Quitman), Messrs. Alsberry, dem., Cameron, Cocke, dem., Falconer, dem., Henderson, Maury, McNutt, McRavin, Runnels, dem. Toomer, dem. 11. Ayes, Messrs. Barnes, Bole, Hargis, McNabb, McPe, Van Norman, 6. So the bill passed.—On this bill, eleven members voted, six of whom were Democrats, and five Whigs.
 Against it,—six Democrats.
 The House passed this Tombecbee Bank whose notes are worth 50 cents in the dollar.—Introduced in the House by a Democrat, nursed through the committee, and voted for, by A. G. McNutt.
 Is this not a Democratic Bank?
 So ends the Banks set on foot in 1836.

MARSHALL COTTON AGAIN.

Our friend Malichi Pegeus, has handed us the following account of Cotton picked out on his plantation on Woodson's Ridge, Lafayette county, Mississippi, Sept. 17.

Thirty-two hands picked 5587 lbs. cotton; averaging 174. Eighteen of these picked 4036; averaging 224. Four best picked 1270; averaging 317. Several of these hands were under twelve years of age.

WHO MADE THE BANKS IN MISSISSIPPI?

To this important question we call the serious attention of the people of North Mississippi. It has been over and over again charged upon the whigs that they were the authors and creators of the banks in this State; and of late, the self-styled democratic party have even denounced men of their own party, who have heretofore held high station in its ranks, as "theiving shinplaster democrats," for countenancing advocating and supporting some of the institutions of our state; institutions made by the democrats, supported and fostered by them; how long, good reader? So long as something good could be gained or expected for themselves, and no longer. The very moment when an outcry against the banks might be expected to effect something for the party—when a destruction of the character and credit of these institutions was necessary to the support of the party, that moment they denounced all and all kinds of Banks as swindling shops, and their supporters and advocates as shinplaster thieves. But who made these banks? Citizens of Mississippi look to the record; examine for yourselves, and in the coming election "render your verdict according to your testimony."

If our state has been cursed with a multiplicity of banks, and in consequence thereof we are now suffering under a depreciated currency—if the banking policy of the state one of the whig candidates for the future has withdrawn from the contest. Col. H. O. ALLEN, of Watrous, has consented to become a candidate in his place.

GEN. BROWN AND THE BANKS

That portion of our readers who have on occasions upon which Gen. Brown a people of this county, witnessed their indignation, with which they were apparently seized, at the bare mention of the matter, will be much surprised to learn that "DISTINGUISHED DEMOCRAT" at the last session of the Legislature of Mississippi, voted in favor of a resolution permitting the Great Cincinnati Rail Road Company, to establish a branch of their bank in this State. It is well known, however, that the Journals show the fact to be a beautiful commentary upon the general's profession does this of itself, and is a strong objection to the establishment of a National Bank upon the grounds of expediency and economy—opposed to the many banks in the State of Mississippi; to the increase of the currency, and yet vote for a resolution to establish a banking institution, over which, we have no legislative control whatever; situated in a remote part of the State; the interests and profits of which are not to accrue, in any respect, to the citizens or to the advantage of our State. Let us establish one of its branches among us.

We again and again ask the people to reflect. Be not satisfied with the false-hearted professions of politicians whose claims to consistency rest also on their lips, and protestations.

FOR THE PEOPLE

The pleasure of social intercourse is frequently destroyed by the idea that we shall part; and the ties of friendship are frequently less strong in consequence of a contemplated separation. "But we shall part." and though 'tis hard to leave
