

DIED.

At her residence in Holly Springs, of pulmonary disease, on the twenty-ninth of May, Mrs. SARAH ANN MASON, wife of W. F. MASON. Scarcely have two years rolled around since the dear'd was introduced into our village, the interesting bride of a devoted husband.—And now she sleeps in the tomb! Alas! how vain are human expectations! It was well said, "that if a devoted husband's care and affection; a tender mother's love; if the tears and cries of sister and brother; if the deep and universal sympathy of the community, could have availed, this lovely woman had not died."

But she is gone, and no promethean fire can again her life relume." How great is the trial, to relations and friends, to give up one so lovely and interesting as the subject of this note is.—Since her residence among us, she has endeared herself to all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, by her hospitable, mild, and gentle manner, unaffected, unassuming, refined and accomplished. She was an ornament to our society—and long will this community remember her many excellencies.—But if our society mourns her loss, how exceeding painful must be her vacant seat to her bereft family! Who can fill that void? or what charm sooth the anguish of their grief? Nothing can reconcile them to their loss but time, and the consolatory belief, that their loss has been her gain. May this distressing dispensation of Providence, teach them the uncertainty of all earthly happiness; and enable them to lay up treasure in Heaven where all is unfading and substantial joy.

The flower, that bloomed but to-day,
Already, lies stricken in death,
Its spirit, has left its frail clay,
To sparkle and live with its God!
