AMERICAN LADIES' BOOK

GOODEY'S Lady's Book splendid and valuable published. The only Magazine and conducted by members posed entirely of original eminent writers of the age a larger number and greater and attractive Pictorial any similar publication.

EDITED BY MRS. SARAH J. HALE, M.D. L. H. SIGOURNEY. Contributors to each number: N. P. Willis, Miss. Hents, Mrs. E. C. Embury, Mrs. S. Fav. Mrs. E. F. Ell

In announcing to his public at large his arrangement the proprietor of Goodey's Magazine to acknowledge the triumphant success of his Magazine reached the extraordinary 40,000 COPIES M

Being a larger edition than of any other work of the kind. This success he is due to the vast superiority which has always maintained over other magazines which have attempted to rival its superiority which he preserve, by keeping it up to date. Literary, Intellectual and Moral, Emblematic, Artistic, this is no idle boast, he has for the past twelve years, made no promise to the public fully performed, nor under his means did not enable him to uttermost.

Entering, as he is about the time of the Lady's Book, and accumulated resources of the business in which he has acquired by long years of experience with a subscription-list of over a million names, and a wide-extended arrangement of literature; with numerous wide-extended arrangements a steadfast purpose of maintaining his work has reached the point where he has hesitated to incur expenses which he well means to which he will not be deterred. The Lady's Book the richest, most attractive and the most valuable in the world, intrinsically and extrinsically, and can justify itself.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

It has even been the aim of the Lady's Book to be one, and for this purpose, to cost, procured the aid of the most eminent writers; and, for several years, editorial supervision to Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney, and to whom, not only their own country, have reason to be proud of the Lady's Book enjoys a decided superiority over other publications, as it is to ladies, which ladies desire must be obvious to every person, and as well as to the public, appreciates the dignity and value. To add to its superiority the proprietor has secured, in already mentioned, the invaluable services of Mrs. C. M. Sedgwick, author of "Letters from England, &
