

Of ill, that ever fill the brain

When whiskey's fumes o'er reason mount;

For now that evil working fountain

Has ceased to charm me with its liquid glow,

And reason's o'er the bottle's whimsies mounting.

Leads the calm mind to a more frightening fount,

That gives a clear view of every thing below,

Yet, there were raptures, I can ne'er forget,

And many moments o'er the goblet's brim unwasted,

For Friendship's ardent sparkles through them yet,

And makes me scarce regret the draughts I've tasted;

While all the unobscured fondness of the soul

Was breathing fragrance round the joyous bowl—

And smiles I've loved, and hearts that I have tried

Have beamed, and beaten gladly by my side;—

And yet, amidst the bliss, there ever was alloy,

For wretched morn's repose has followed evening's joy

No more the clouds of shame shall gather now

In darkling shadows on the enfrenzied brow;—

But clear and calm, the soul shall, through the eyes,

Speak her firm thoughts, nor know her being to despise.

No more the MAX shall sink beneath his sphere,

And make each lowlier living thing his peer;

But proudly keep the place he was assigned,

CREATION'S LORD, AND BROTHER OF MANKIND!

And will not Friendship shed a brighter flame,

When Reason speaks the justice of her claim?—

Will not AFFECTION have a steadier glow,

Unheated by the sifful wine cup's flow?—

Yes—yes, I feel that Pleasure's purest glance,

Comes with the peaceful sound of TEMPERANCE!

OLD FRIENDS TOGETHER.

Oh, time is sweet, when roses meet

With spring's sweet breath around them,

And sweet the cost, when hearts are lost,

If those we love have found them!

And sweet the mind that still can find

A star in darkest weather!

But nought can be so sweet, to see,

As old friends met together!

Those days of old, when youth was bold,

And time stole wings to speed it,

But youth ne'er knew how fast time flew—

Or knowing, did not heed it!

Though gray each brow that meets us now,

For age brings wintry weather—

Yet nought can be so sweet to see

As those old friends together!

The few long known, that years have shown,

With hearts that friendship blesses;

A hand to cheer—perchance a tear,

To soothe a friend's distresses!

That helped and tried—still side by side—

A friend to face hard weather;

Oh, thus may we yet joy to see

And meet old friends together!
